

SR Technics establishes United States sales office

Zurich, March 1, 2010

SR Technics has opened a sales office in Sunrise, Florida to drive the expansion of its business in the Americas.

Entering the American market is a key element in the overall growth strategy of the SR Technics Group. The set-up of a local presence is a major step in developing the customer relations required.

The local office, registered under SR Technics America, Inc., is headed by Steve Rugg, SR Technics' Vice President Sales Americas.

As part of its growth strategy, SR Technics aims to provide integrated maintenance, repair and overhaul (MRO) solutions for airlines based in North and Latin America, with a particular focus on component and engine services.

In partnership with Sanad, the aircraft component financing company incorporated in Switzerland and launched by Mubadala Development Company in February 2010, SR Technics will offer additional financing solutions, such as sale-and-leaseback options for components, engines and other assets.

"We are convinced that we can support airlines based in the Americas with MRO services that deliver the world-class standards for safety, quality, reliability and aircraft availability for which SR Technics is renowned," said Ray Sisson, SR Technics' Chief Commercial Officer. "By pairing our maintenance services with financing solutions provided by Sanad, we are extending our service portfolio well beyond those available from traditional MRO providers to offer our customers genuine added value."

SR Technics offers a wide range of products in the component services field. These include components exchange, maintenance, repair, engineering, logistics and pooling, along with overall component management.

With its engine services, too, SR Technics provides an extensive product portfolio. The range includes overhauls and repairs of CFM56-5B, -5C and -7B and PW4000-94" and -100" engines and engine components, along with engineering services. Clients also benefit from round-the-clock on-wing support 365 days a year, trend monitoring, comprehensive materials management and engine leasing assistance. The SR Technics Engine Maintenance Center provides further additional services such as tailor-made asset management concepts, data management, and training and instruction.
