

First Maintenance Training Services Agreement signed with Airbus

Zurich, September 21, 2010

SR Technics is the first member within the Airbus Maintenance Training Network who has signed a Maintenance Training Services Contract with Airbus. Under the agreement SR Technics will offer different types of training services for Airbus customers.

Courses complying with the Airbus Maintenance Crew Training Manual (MCTM) can be given now by a mixed team of SR Technics and Airbus instructors. In the Airbus Competence Training classrooms instructors will use the latest software and hardware to make courses more interactive and to reduce the amount of practical training on aircraft to save time and costs.

The agreement is the result of a strong and long-standing partnership between Airbus and SR Technics. Customers will benefit from a wider range and more local access to training centers.

Markus Bürgin, Head of Technical Training at SR Technics, points out: "SR Technics has made major investments to offer customers state of the art simulation technologies and software to facilitate an excellent learning experience. With this new partnership SR Technics underlines its leading position as a provider of technical training for the aviation industry."

SR Technics is attending the MRO Europe from September 28 – 30 in London and welcomes visitors at stand 436.
